

Stina Apel

Is a Project manager at Volvo Technology, which is the research and innovation company at the Volvo Group. As a RFID expert, she has a lot of research experience from data collecting and data logging in the supply chain and has been responsible for several pilots and projects in the Volvo Group. She has also been involved with several logistic research projects on both national and international levels, on behalf of the Volvo Group.